Runaway Matches.

Runaway matches usually attract much attention, and excite pretty warm controversy. Young people are apt to sympathize with the young couple, and speak of their proceeding as "very romantic." There is a young lady in one of Sheridan's comedies who was grievously disappointed in being allowed to marry her lover in the regular way, in her own parish church, with the usual retinue of bridesmaids and friends. It seemed terribly flat and commonplace, compared with the getting down a ladder into the garden, climbing a wall, and posting away to Scotland with four horses on the full gallop.

We all like to see and hear of something spirited and gallant. A young lover, all ardor and devotion, rescuing a beautiful girl from a cruel tyrant of an uncle, who has locked her up on bread and water for six weeks, is a figure we are pleased to dwell upon in novels. In real life, too, there have been such cases, and some runaway matches have resulted in great happiness to all concerned.

It remains a fact, however, that a marriage to which good parents deliberately object is not likely to turn out happily. Parents are more likely to judge the matter wisely than their immature and inexperienced child. They know what marriage is, and they know upon what conditions happiness in it depends. They know how it all looks when the honeymoon is over, and the romantic pair settle down to the unromantic duties of paying rent, going to market, and making a limited sum per annum supply innumerable wants, and yet last twelve calendar months.

It is a sad thing for either a daughter or a son to leave their childhood's home, never more perhaps to return, without the sanction and the blessing of those who gave them life and nurture.

GOATS TO PROTECT SHEEP.—The farmers of Hunterdon and Somerset counties, New Jersey, use goats to protect their sheep from dogs. Two goats can drive away a dozen dogs, and two are about all each farmer puts in with his sheep. As soon as a dog enters the field at night, the goats attack him, and their butting propensities are too much for the canine, who soon finds himself rolling over and over. A few repetitions of this treatment causes the dog to quit the field, limping and yelling. Formerly, when a dog entered a sheep field at night, the sheep would run wildly around and cry piteously. Since the goats have been used to guard them, they form in line behind the goats and seem to enjoy the fun. The idea of utilizing goats in this way came from the West, where they are put in sheep pens to drive away wolves. [N. Y. Sun.]

MASONIC.—The Masonic Grand Lodge of Kentucky at its last session adopted the following resolution: "All unaffiliated Masons, who shall have remained so for a period of 12 months after they demit from their respective lodges, shall be divested of the following rights, viz: The right of Masonic procession, and the right to visit any one lodge more than three times. All Masons unaffiliated at the adoption of this resolution, shall have 12 months in which to affiliate with some lodge."

Many of the Hoboken women object to having their arms in public. One young woman positively declined to roll up her sleeve. She told Dr. Allen to cut it over the spot on which he wished to apply the vaccine matter. She wore a new and expensive dress, and he remonstrated with her, but to no purpose. "Cut it," she said, "cut it." He finally ripped the seam and performed the operation. [New York Sun.]

A breeder of poultry says: "Every spring I procure a quantity of cedar boughs and scatter them plentifully in and around the hen house. This is all that is necessary, as the odor of cedar keeps away the lice."

Forty years' experience has stamped public approval on Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, as the most reliable of all remedies for Throat or Chest diseases. Its continued and increasing popularity is conclusive evidence of its superior curative qualities.

Why the Parson Left Kentucky.

A good many years ago, when a certain place in Texas was a very small town, quite a number of prominent citizens went out on a hunting expedition. One night, when they were all gathered around the camp fire, one of the party suggested that each man should give the time and reason for his leaving his native State and coming to Texas, whereupon each one in turn told his experience. Judge Blank had killed a man in self-defense, in Arkansas, Gen. Soandao, had forged another man's signature to a check, while another came to Texas on account of his having two wives. The only man who did not make any disclosures was a sanctimonious-looking old man, who, although a professional gambler, was usually called "Parson."

"Well, Parson, why did you leave Kentucky?"

"I don't care to say anything about it. Besides, it was only a trifle. None of you would believe me anyhow."

"Oat with it! Did you shoot anybody?"

"No, gentlemen, I did not. Since you want to know so bad, I'll tell you. I left Kentucky because I did not build a church."

Deep silence fell on the group. No such excuse for coming to Texas ever had been heard of before. There was evidently an unexplained mystery at the bottom of it. The "Parson" was called on to furnish more light.

"Well, gentlemen, you see a congregation raised $3,000 and turned it over to me to build a church—and I didn't build the church. That's all."

Monkeys.

Joe, a monkey at the London Zoo, could never be got back into his cage when once he was allowed his liberty outside. But he had one weakness—that of curiosity—and the keeper, looking down a dark hole, attracted the attention of the monkey, who slowly approached him to find out the cause of the investigation. Suddenly the keeper would start back and the monkey's courage, deserting him, he flew to the shelter of his cage, when the door would be shut. This trick was successfully played on him every time, month after month, he never seeming to learn it. Another monkey, "Miss Jenny," that came from India, and parted her hair in the middle, smoked real tobacco, and would smoke a half-smoked cigar from a visitor and finish it. She would also hold a bottle of ale with her hind foot and take long draughts between the puffs of smoke.

An institution to which the death of Gen. Garfield has made a perceptible difference is the Christian or Campbellite Church of Washington. From a position of relative obscurity, it was suddenly lifted to national fame, as being the church which the President elected attended; but now it hears more inquiries made for the church where President Arthur worships. Still it cannot complain. Its pastor, with rare promptness, utilized the election of Gen. Garfield at once in asking subscriptions for a new edifice, and they poured in from all quarters to the extent of $30,000. Although afterward the flow of funds was checked, of course, enough had been secured to build a good church. The moral of making hay while the sun shines is sufficiently obvious. [N. Y. Sun.]

She wanted to test his affection, so picking up the revolver and putting her eye to the muzzle, she said, innocently: "I wonder it's loaded?" "Oh, don't!" he exclaimed, with manifest agitation. It satisfied her that he loved her, and she asked, indifferently: "Why not?" "Because," he answered, "I've got home rent to pay next month, and a funeral would embarrass me."

Let no one suppose that by acting a good part through life he will escape scandal. There will be those even who hate him for the very qualities that ought to procure esteem. There are some folks in the world who are not willing that others should be better than themselves.

A HINT IN SEASON.—A coat of gun copal varnish applied to the soles of boots and shoes, and repeated as it dries until the pores are filled and the surface shines like polished mahogany, will make the sole waterproof, and it lasts three times longer.

There are some men in the world, who, if salvation were selling at eleven cents a yard, would ask for half a yard and then try to beat the bill down to five cents. [Stoughtonville Herald.]

A Simple Remedy said to Cure Smallpox and Scarlet Fever.

At the time of the smallpox scare, in 1872, when Boston was so sorely afflicted, a recipe for a remedy was twice published in the Hartford Times and some one in Boston obtained a copy accompanied by a letter from the editor, who stated that there were people in Hartford who could vouch for its efficiency. It was said that a person who tried it in Ohio in a case of confluent smallpox, where the doctor had little hope, found that it saved the patient's life. Other cases were then tried, and every one was successful. The remedy was said to be equally sure in scarlet fever, and to prevent or cure the smallpox, even though the pittings were filling. The recipe was as follows:

Sulphate of zinc, one grain; fox-glove (digitalis), one grain; half a teaspoonful of sugar; when thoroughly mixed add four ounces water. Take a spoonful every hour. Either disease will disappear in twelve hours. For a child, smaller doses, according to age.

Of this recipe a physician said: "When Jenner discovered cowpox in England, the world of science hurled an avalanche of fame upon his head; when the most scientific school of medicine in the world—that of Paris—published this panacea for smallpox it passed unheeded. It is as unfailing as fate, and conquers in every instance. It is harmless when taken by well persons. It is remarkable that this remedy should not be more widely known if it is what is claimed."

The Enormous Manufacture of Matches.

Some idea of the size of the match trade may be gained by a glance at the figures paid for stamps. The Government exacts a revenue of one cent per hundred on matches manufactured. During the year ending May, 1881, one company paid for stamps $4,500,000. This year the amount paid will be increased $50,000. There are two hundred matches in a box; the tax is two cents, they are sold to the grocer for three cents, and retail at five. Four million five hundred thousand dollars represent 455,000,000 one-cent stamps. As each stamp represents 100 matches the grand total manufactured is 45,500,000,000 or 277,500,000 five-cent boxes.

THE PARDON MILL.—The latest pardon granted by the tender-hearted old Governor of Kentucky shows more conclusively than ever his utter disregard of the judgments of the courts in criminal cases. Last Spring in Scott county, Mack Salyers shot and instantly killed his brother-in-law, John Bonnell. It was considered a willful murder, and Salyers was committed to jail without bail. Governor Blackburn has just pardoned Salyers without a trial. With the constantly recurring interference with the course of justice by executive clemency, it is to be wondered at that frightful crimes are on the increase in Kentucky? [Covington Commonwealth.]

The babble of an infant is no more nor less than speech; it is not measure and yet it is a song; a murmur that began in heaven and will not finish on earth; it commenced before human birth, and will continue in the sphere beyond? These lisping are the echo of—These beautiful thoughts end with a reference to Jones' Teething Syrup, which we omit. [Texas Siftings.]

Emma Abbott is very bashful. She didn't want her arm spoiled, so she picked her leg through a hole in a board partition and gave no name, and to this day the physician who vaccinated her thinks it was the leg of some thin little girl. [Newport Journal.]

"There is but one good wife in this town!" said a clergyman in the course of his sermon—the congregation looked expectant—and every married man thinks he's got her," added the minister.

A Michigan girl tried to commit suicide by swallowing thirty-six shirt buttons. Fortunately her digestion mistook them for railway restaurant beans and she was saved.

One-half ounce of salt to the pound of butter is the rule for salting adopted by the makers of the most celebrated lump butter, which always sells for a fancy price.

Ida Lewis has saved two members of a brass band from drowning. Ida's popularity is rapidly decreasing since this rash act.

Brugging.

It is natural for men to brag. And frequently the less he has to brag over the more brugging he will do. The most trifling incidents are sufficient to keep some men brugging all their lives.

We once knew a man whom Henry Clay kicked out of his way, and the fellow bragging of it all the rest of his days, and he was proud to be introduced "as the man Henry of the West booted."

Men brag over things that never happened, though they repeat it so often that they come to believe it themselves. It has been estimated that it would require a vessel like the Great Eastern to carry all the people claiming to have been on Fulton's first steamboat when it made its trial trip.

We have ourselves shaken hands with twenty-eight men each of whom boasted that he was the first man to walk across the Niagara suspension bridge.

The woods are full of men who are ready to swear that they were standing right alongside of General Grant when he said he "would fight it out on that line if it took all Summer." [Saturday Night.]

A Paducah drummer tells us that in his travels through Tennessee he found an Enoch Arden, in the person of a man who had left his wife for a trip, forty-three years ago, and only returned a few days since to find his wife had long ago given him up for dead and had married another man. Fortunately for the wanderer however, the last husband had been ushered into that "bourne from which no traveler returns" a few months back and the old man stepped in and renewed the love and wedded happiness begun as in younger days. Verily truth is stranger than fiction, and the story told in such beautiful lines by England's Poet Laureate is again repeated in realistic terms by the above instance. [Paducah Enterprise.]

There is nothing stingy or old maidish about a maternal alligator. When the old girl is ready to increase the census, she just piles up from 150 to 200 eggs in a heap of mud and grass, piled up like a haystack, and it takes the center of the solar system a week or two of hard 95 in-the-shade work to hatch out the colony. But the sun does it, and when the old girl informs her mate that he has 172 more children to clothe and send to school, he looks astonished like a man who has just found an orphan asylum in a clothes basket, and shines along up and down the shore doing his family marketing wherever he can find an unwary dog, a young pig, or a bathing urchin. Even the man who is struck with triplets, when he wasn't even expecting twins, may be grateful that he isn't an alligator.

The salary steal of the Legislature ought to forever politically damn every member who takes pay for the two-weeks' recess. The people and the press should condemn this steal in the terms it deserves. The voting of $5 per day to themselves while on a big drunk at Atlanta, or spending the holidays at home, is an outrage on the taxpayers of the Commonwealth, and those members who participate in the steal should be sternly rebuked by their constituents, and not one of them should ever be elected to any office within their gift. [Madisonville Times.]

A Rhode Island man called a neighbor a "lantern-jawed cockroach!" A suit for slander resulted, and the jury returned as follows: "Not guilty on lantern-jawed, but way off on cockroach, and we find damages in the sum of ten cents."

An Allan county young man purchased $50 worth of clothes for his intended, and then she refused him. He went after the clothes, and when he returned said: "You can just bet I stripped her to her shirt."

"How many years have you been dumb?" sympathetically asked a gentleman of a beggar, who pretended to be bereft of speech. "Five years, sir," replied the impostor, completely taken off his guard.

Don't trouble yourself to stretch your mouth any wider," said a dentist to a man who was extending his jaw frightfully, "as I intend to stand outside of it to draw your tooth."

"You wouldn't take a man's last cent for a cigar, would you?" "Certainly I would," "Well, here it is; then; give me the cigar."

No man ever looked on the dark side of life without finding it.

Physical Value of Singing.

Singing is one of the healthiest exercises in which men, women and children can engage. The Medical Wochenschrift, of St. Petersburg, has an article based upon exhaustive researches made by Professor Monassein during the Autumn of 1878, when he examined 222 singers ranging between the ages of nine and fifty-three. He laid chief weight upon the growth and absolute circumference of the chest, upon the comparative relation of the latter to the tallness of the subject, and upon the pneumometric and spirometric condition of the singer. It appears to be an ascertained fact from Dr. Monassein's experiments that the relative, and even the absolute, circumference of the chest is greater among singers than among those who do not sing, and that it increases with the growth and age of the singer. The professor even says that singing may be placed physically as the antithesis of drinking spirituous liquors; the latter hinders, while the former promotes.

Not an Unnatural Mistake.

An Austin gentleman, who travels a great deal, recently brought home, as a sample, one of the hard black biscuits that are put on the tables at eating stations along the railroads. The morning after his return home he heard a great hullabaloo in the yard. He went out and discovered that his children had put the biscuit on the ground, and had put a live coal on its back. They thought it was a turtle.

Uncle Mose met Jim Webster on Austin Avenue. "I heered bofe yer parents was dead. What did yer git from 'em?" asked Uncle Mose. "Lemme se," said Jim, pensively. "From my foddler I've got dese heah crooked legs, and from my mudder I inherits er weakness in de chest." [Texas Siftings.]

Don't DREAM.—Sleep, to be most refreshing, should be dreamless. Use Brown's Iron Bitters, and you will enjoy healthful, dreamless slumber. It strengthens every part of the body, and is very soothing in its effect on the brain and nervous system. It is the best medicine in the world, and assists nature in removing all symptoms of ill health.

INTERNATIONAL COTTON EXPOSITION, ATLANTA, GEORGIA.

The Davis Sewing Machine again ahead.

And Carries off the Highest Number of Awards.

And is acknowledged superior to all other machines. The judges say in their report: "That its peculiar mechanism enables it to sew various kinds of fabrics that can not be well sewed on machines having an under feed." And the award to the Davis is the only one in which the superiority of one machine over another is in any way recognized or expressed by the jury in any of their reports.

The uniformity of length of stitch on all kinds of fabrics was commended by the jury as worthy of special mention, and these three reports fully demonstrate that the Davis Veritrol Sewing Machine is the best, and with it can be produced the greatest variety and most perfect work, with the greatest ease of any machine in the world.

REPORT OF AWARDS—GROUP 12.

International Cotton Exposition, Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 21, 1881.—Award to the Davis Sewing Machine Company.

GROUP 7.

Entry 1499.—The Davis Sewing Machine Company is worthy of mention for its peculiar feed motion, which gives it special value for sewing various kinds of fabrics that cannot be so well sewed on machines having the underfeed.

[Signed] JAMES S. ATWOOD, GEORGE B. HARRIS, GEORGE B. HARRIS, Committee.

Approved: H. I. KIMBALL, Director General. GROUP NO. 25—CLASS 179—ENTRY NO. 1499. Product, Davis Sewing Machine work. Name and address of exhibitor, Davis Sewing Machine Company, Watertown, N. Y. The undersigned having examined the products herein described, respectfully recommend the same to the Executive Committee of the International Cotton Exposition for award for the following reasons, viz:

Uniformity of stitching on all work shown. Great variety of work. Artistic taste and skill in its construction. Special attention is called to the embroidery work done by Miss Nellie A. Hardy on the Davis machine with attachment. [Signed] L. THOMAS, W. H. UNDERWOOD, C. C. GIBSON, Committee.

As might have been supposed, the Anti-free pass bill was killed by a decided majority in the Kentucky Legislature. There is nothing that the little legislator thinks more of than his railroad pass. It is a new thing to him, this riding on the cars free, and he shows his piece of paste board to the conductor with the air of a man, who feels like he owns the whole concern. He does not seem to realize whenever he pulls one out that he is producing evidence against himself, that he has accepted a bribe, although every honest man must regard it in that light. Railroad companies are like all other corporations, soulless, and never bestow a favor except for a purpose, or valuable consideration. They are exceedingly chary of such favors, and the legislator, who imagines he is a matter of personal consideration, is both a fool and a knave. We would like to see him try to get a pass after his term of official service is over. He would find out then how much personal consideration a railroad company has for him. No, upright lawmaker, you may endeavor to quiet your qualms of conscience by pretending to think otherwise, but when you accept a pass, for which you can furnish no consideration but favorable legislation, you accept a bribe, which, petty though it be, has from time whereof the memory of man runneth not to the contrary, had the effect intended by the railroads. Those little passes always secure favorable legislation. They allow unjust discrimination against localities. They furnish reason why the freight on a car load of coal from Pine Hill to this place, 30 miles, is more than it is to Louisville, 130 miles. They account for the fact that freight from Cincinnati or Louisville, here, is three or four times as much as it is from New York to either of those points. A scrupulously honest lawmaker will not accept one of these little bribes, and until we can elect men to the Legislature, who would scorn such an attempt, the people have but small show when railroads come up for consideration. It may be urged that editors, who are supposed to get every thing, including their railroad fares, without money and without price, are the last men to attempt to bring about the reform, so greatly desired, but it is an erroneous idea to suppose that newspaper men get free passes. The passes that they get are far from free. The advertisement necessary to secure such passes, is in our case at least, worth at our regular rates, many times more than the use of them is ever worth to us, for we rarely ever have time to use them, besides, we would much prefer buying our tickets if the railroads would pay in money for the space they use. We make these statements to correct a mistaken idea and to show that we do not do what we condemn in others. To their credit be it said, there are a few of the members of our Legislature who returned the passes sent to them. They deserve honorable mention, and if we had their names we would publish them that the world may know there are a few really honest men left.

MAHONEY'S son, Butler is finding out by degrees, that he is not quite so big a man as his father. He draws his pay as Clerk of his father's Committee in the Senate, and spends that, and more too, running with gamblers and fast women. He has frequently been locked up in Washington station houses, and the other night a hackman, whose vehicle he had used and then refused to pay, not only put a beautiful head on him, but took his hat and diamond pin, leaving him to go home minus both. He threatened to have the jehu arrested, but he declined him to take the matter to the Courts.

The Apportionment Bill agreed on by the Census Committee, provides that after the 31 of March, 1883, the House of Representatives shall consist of 320 members. Should that number be adopted, Arkansas will gain one member, California one, Florida will lose one, Kentucky, Georgia, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia, gain one each, and Texas four. The Northern States will gain 18 and lose 4.

The Court in Banc, so often referred to in the Guitau trial, is an official meeting of four Judges of the Common Law Court, who sit to determine law points. The word banc is French, and means simply a bench.

There are fourteen counties in Louisville's application for a new trial, but it is not thought that any of them will count for much.

THE Rev. Leftwich, of Tennessee, has got himself in trouble again. Last year he made an indecent attack in his pulpit on Miss Julia Hunt, as pure a lady as ever trod the stage, for which he would have been punished, both by her big husband and the leading man of the troupe, but for a subsequent apology. A few days ago a little boy while stealing a ride on a train at Nashville, fell and broke his arm. The following Sunday, the Rev. Leftwich took the accident as the subject of his text, and held up the little boy as a modern young devil and scored it into his mother for raising such a child. Those who heard the remarks say they were almost scandalous in their nature, and now the mother and an older son is looking for the preacher with a cowhide. Let us hope that they will find him. A well administered dose of that kind of medicine, would evidently have a good effect on the clerical class.

We were led by an item in a Republican paper to the L. A. Gov. Cantrill a great injustice in our issue of the 27th, which we hasten to correct. We have since learned from excellent authority that Gov. Cantrill was not Salyers counsel as charged, that he did not ask that he be pardoned, and that he has made it an invariable rule never to request the pardon of any body, feeling that it would be a breach of official propriety. We regret that we did not reflect that Republican papers are always ready to defame Democratic officials, but taking the matter for granted, we felt so outraged that notwithstanding we claim to be a good friend of Gov. Cantrill, we could not suppress an expression of disgust.

GATH has been nosing around Washington, and writes to the Enquirer that there is no show whatever for a new trial for Guitau, but that he will be sentenced during the latter part of this week to be hung on Friday, June 23d, 1882, a year, lacking a week from the time he killed the President. He will not appear before the Court in Banc during the argument for a new trial, and unless it is granted him, he has made his last public appearance until the fatal day. Guitau continues to wear a bold front, and talks hopeful, but the jail attendants say he is greatly depressed and has lost to a great degree his hogish appetite.

A WRITER in the Louisville Commercial asks Col. Wolford to head the so-called independent movement and run for Clerk of the Court of Appeals any way. We do not suppose the individual knows the character of the man he addresses. Col. Wolford is a Democrat from principal, a man of honor and one who would scorn the idea of taking a part in a Convention and then violate the obligation imposed on every gentleman composing it.

ONE of the many inexplicable doings of the Legislature, is the constant putting off of the election of Public Printer. Col. Major is the regular caucus nominee, and there will be little more to do than to declare him elected, which would take less time than those ever recurring motions to postpone.

It is said that the present Congress will repeal the tax on bank checks and matches. There is neither reason nor justice in such a tax, and it ought to have been repealed years ago.

THE Louisville Post says that Col. Rochester seems to be the only member of the R. R. Commission possessing ordinary capacity. This is pretty severe on the boys.

LEGISLATIVE.

—A bill to legalize wire fences is before the House.

—A bill to allow Jallers the right to appoint deputies, passed the Senate.

—The House passed a bill exempting the jury in the Hargis case from further service in that line for 12 years.

—The Whipping Post bill has been made the order of the day for next Thursday, to continue from day to day until disposed of.

—The House very properly sat down on a bill to create the county of Blackburn out of Clay, Laurel and Jackson. There are far too many pauper counties now.

—A bill to punish wife beating by stripes laid on the bare back was discussed in the House the other day, but of course the fine gentlemen could not agree to return to so barbarous a relic of punishment.

—A bill has been introduced in the House to abolish Commonwealth's Attorney's fees, and instead, pay those officers a salary of $2,400. It is greatly to the interest of law and order that this bill be killed at once.

—Mr. Pierigo has presented a bill for the benefit of Harrison Ray, Assessor, of Garard, and another to authorize a defined portion of that county to subscribe to the capital stock of the Poor Ridge and Sugar Creek Turnpike.

—The Courier Journal's Frankfort correspondent says: Leave of absence was obtained for Senator Malone, of Lincoln, for a short visit home. His proposition to be in his seat again Monday, thus losing one day. It is due to Mr. Malone to say that he has not lost a single hour from his seat up to this time since the first day of the session, having voted upon every call of the yeas and nays.

—The Senate bill incorporating the Louisville and Southeastern R. R., which is to be built from Louisville to a point between Nicholasville and Danville on the Southern R. R., has passed the House. If built, it is claimed that it will be the shortest line between the Northwest and Southeast. The charter provides that no County or City shall be asked to aid in building it.

—Judge Henderson has offered the following bills: To amend the charter of the Turnersville, McKinney and Coffey's Mill Turnpike, to charter the Boone's Schoolhouse and Stringy Turnpike Co., in Lincoln county; to amend the charter of the Han-tonville and Bradfordville Turnpike, and to empower the Trustees of the Stanford Male and Female Seminary to sell a part of the Seminary lot.

NOTES OF CURRENT EVENTS.

—Virginia has a member in the Legislature 89 years old. We hope he is not a reprobator.

—Strawberries are plentiful in the Jack-sonville, Fla. market, and large shipments are being made North.

—Mrs. Scoville indignantly denies that her husband is about to apply for a divorce on the ground of insanity.

—Arthur breakfasts at 10 A. M., dines at 7:30 P. M., and goes to bed at about 3 A. M., so says a Washington Jenkins.

—The expenses to the country of the assassination of the President and the trial of the assassin is estimated at $250,000.

—J. C. Rodemer, a contractor on the Knoxville Extension, was injured about the nose and mouth by a falling rock from a blast.

—M. A. Moore, proprietor of the hotel at Williamsburg, Whitley county, shot and killed Hannibal Ross, who was making at him with a drawn knife.

—G. J. Burgess, a contractor on the Knoxville Extension, drew his estimate the other day and departed for parts unknown, leaving numerous creditors in the lurch.

—The four proper counties of Putaski, Whitley, Wayne and Russell, draw $25,816.04 more money than they pay into the Treasury. Putaski heads the list with $9,062.48.

—Raleigh, N. C. and New Orleans, La., each had a hanging matinee Friday. At the former place, John Morris paid the penalty for murder, and at the latter, August Davis, for rape.

—The agony of the office seekers of Cincinnati is over. Wm. C. Taft will be Collector of Internal Revenue, Leopold Martineau Assistant U. S. Treasurer, and S. A. Whitfield, Postmaster.

—The investigation of Governor Churchill, of Arkansas, is still in progress. One report is that the deficit is $75,000, but the governor's friends say it is not over twenty-five thousand dollars.

—When the news of the Guitau verdict was announced in a Detroit theatre, one man failed to join in the applause, in fact, he went so far as to hiss, when a mob set upon him and nearly killed him.

—The South Kentucky, although having declared in favor of T. Lovey Jones for Governor, has changed its mind since Mr. Jones' section refused to give aid or comfort to any candidate of the southwestern part of the State.

—The postoffice appropriation bill has been reported to the House. It appropriates $43,039,300, being $22,500 less than the amount asked for by the estimates, and $2,651,808 in excess of the amount appropriated for the current year.

—The husband of Christine Nilsson, the sweet songstress, has gone crazy over the belief that he had lost all his property. This was exceedingly foolish, since he could have discounted every note that escaped from the throat of his wife at $5 or more.

BOYLE COUNTY.

Danville.

—The many friends of Dr. S. P. Craig in Danville will regret to hear of his misfortune on Saturday night. Dr. Craig was a medical student in Danville for several years, and his friends and admirers here hope to hear of his speedy recovery.

—Faint whispers of a number of spring weddings, to take place in and about Danville are already heard, but it is too soon to more than whisper about them; in due time the readers of the INTERIOR JOURNAL shall hear of them with full particulars.

—About the only thing that has occurred recently to disturb the even tenor of very "proper" Danville, was the mysterious poisoning of the family of Mr. Henry Olmsted on Thursday night last. The family consisting of Mr. Olmsted, his wife, two children and Mrs. Ball, Mrs. Olmsted's mother, took supper at the usual hour, and were taken violently ill, and when Dr. Cowan, who was called in arrived, all were speechless. The Dr. discovered marked symptoms of mineral poison and applied the usual remedies, and at this time all are out of danger, although Mrs. Ball, who is an elderly lady, is still quite feeble. No well-founded suspicion attaches to any one, and how the poison was introduced into what the family ate for supper is yet a mystery.

—Over two years ago the citizens of Danville contributed money and real estate amounting to $12,000 to the Cincinnati Southern Railway, on condition that the machine shops for that division be located here. The scheme was opposed by a considerable number of antediluvians who feared that somehow or other the presence of said machine shops, and the large number of mechanics necessarily employed therein, might have a baneful influence on our pet darling Centre College and the Theological Seminary. But they have been needlessly alarmed, for two years and more have passed, and there are no signs of machine shops nor of mechanics. A gentleman, who from the first took much interest in the matter, recently wrote to the railroad authorities at Cincinnati, and asked them what they proposed to do. In due time the answer came, but it was de-terminately non-committal. The Trustees said that Danville was a fine point for machine shops or anything else; that they intended to do what was right, &c., but what they proposed to do, and when, they did not indicate with positive clearness.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. W. M. Higgins is a guest of her son, W. H. Higgins.
Mr. W. P. Tate has moved to his place in the suburbs of town.
Miss Bettie Jones, of Mercer, is visiting Miss Mamie McAllister.
Miss CLARA HELEN has gone on a visit to Miss Nellie Engleman, at Danville.
Mrs. A. T. NENNELLEY is still confined to her bed, and does not grow much better.
Miss ELIZA ENGLEMAN, after a short visit to Miss Betty Pennington, returned home yesterday.
HENRY PEAK, son of J. P. Peak, is convalescing after a seventeen day siege with the pneumonia.
Among the pretty girls from a distance at the Link Friday night, were Misses Lillie Foster, of Lexington, Nellie Engleman and Phemie Salter, of Danville.
Mr. G. W. JAMES left yesterday for Coffeyville, Kansas, whither he will take his family in the Spring. Mr. James is a solid citizen whom the East End can ill spare.

LOCAL MATTERS.

Of course everybody will be at the Link to-night.
A NEW stock of Champion Steel Plows at W. H. Higgins.
DEAD—Tom Jasper, who was shot some time ago by W. C. Owens, in Somerset, died Sunday.
McALLISTER & BRIGHT have 30,000 lbs. extra family flour. Low figures given when 500 lbs. or more are taken.
The location of the Postoffice is settled. It will be in Mr. Ed. McAllister's store-room, lately occupied by Mr. J. N. Craig.
If you are for building up the town and filling in the waste places, show it by voting early to-morrow for the $3,000 subscription to secure the Machine Shops.
J. T. HARRIS, at the Stanford Market House, will sell the best of Beef, Pork and Ham at 84 cents per lb., and all other things in his line, in proportion. Every thing warranted the very best.
STANFORD people can by showing an unfriendly spirit toward the Railroad Company, drive the shops to some other point. Let it not be said that it was the fault of the town that they were not located here.

THE issue of the SEMI-WEEKLY INTERIOR JOURNAL makes the ninth for January and the month is not out yet, and still there are persons who grumble that the price has been raised. The blank paper is worth almost as much as we get for it printed.
ALB BERNETT's Musical Comedy Company and Wallace's Troupe will appear at the Stanford Opera House on the evening of February 8th. Every body here knows that old Alb never fails to give a good show. A bare notice of his coming will insure a full house.

THURSDAY broke into the store of McAllister & Bright, Saturday night, and stole therefrom about 400 lbs. choice flour. No one was sleeping in the store at the time, but the proprietors say that it will not be the case again. They will give the rascals all they can get in the future, and extend them an invitation to call any night that they see proper.

WE called School Commissioner J. M. Phillips' attention to the fact that according to the Auditor's report, he got a good deal of money for disbursing the $6,047.83 drawn for schools in this county, the amount being set down at $440.43. He was surprised, and immediately produced the papers to prove that he only got $302.22. There is evidently a mistake somewhere, and Judge Phillips says he has not made it.

PLECHOW's illustrated paper, the Chronik, which was to utterly demolish Mr. Harris, has never materialized. Friday, he shook the dust of the city of Louisville from his feet and proceeded to Cincinnati, where he issued another flailing paper, in which he lauded the Rev. Thomas Harrison, now holding forth in that city, as interested. The Church people had him arrested, but after being taken to the station house, he was released, as no charge was preferred against him. He ought to be confined in a Lunatic Asylum.

A BAH MAN—Lewis Ball, a one-legged individual, went to Kings Mountain Tunnel, Friday evening, and imbibing freely in rot-gut, soon had on his war paint. He did not, however, get very blood thirsty till he saw his wife, when he immediately began to give her a unmerciful beating. Finishing with her he proceeded to his mother-in-law's, Mrs. Nix's, and being refused admittance, he fired his gun at the door and then kicked it in. He ran the old lady out of doors and raised Cain generally. The next day three warrants were sworn out against him, one for wife whipping, another for disturbing the peace, and the third a peace warrant. Up to yesterday he had not been arrested, and if he knows what's good for himself he had better steer clear of the scene of his devilment.

Export Bread and Cakes at all times at Dawson Bros.
New and full stock of Furniture just received at W. K. Wearen's.

THE law card of Alex. Anderson, Esq., of Boyle county, appears in another column, and it gives us pleasure to commend him to those needing legal services.

A. A. WARREN will continue to supply his customers and the public, with the daily Courier-Journal and Enquirer. Subscriptions to the Weeklies, also received.
Mr. DAVID KRAMER has arrived and is busily engaged preparing for his Grand Opening next Saturday. It is hardly necessary to ask the reader to observe his large advertisement. He can hardly do otherwise.

THE new Flouring and Grist Mill at McKinney, built by Messrs. K. L. Tanner and D. S. Jones, of that place, and the Kennedy Brothers, of Stanford, will be put in operation this week. The building is 24x30, is of wood and is three stories high. It will run one corn and two wheat burrs.

Mr. W. E. McLAUGHLIN, the General, Traveling Agent of the great Musical Instrument firm of D. P. Faulds, Louisville, has his present headquarters at the Myers House, Stanford, and will visit our people in the interest of his house. This firm is thoroughly reliable, and as they warrant all instruments sold, you can not do better than purchase of them.

TRAIN DETAINED—A freight train moving at the rate of 25 miles an hour, ran into an open switch at Moreland Station, on the Southern Road, yesterday, wrecking the engine and five cars. Our informant says that two cars were thrown at right angles over the track, and the engine was turned over on its side. The track was blocked the whole day. Fortunately, no body was hurt. Accidents on this road are of almost daily occurrence, which shows that it is run either by an ignorant or careless set, unfit in either case, to be entrusted with the lives of human beings.

THE oration of Thos. P. Hill in nominating Col. Frank Wolford in the recent Democratic Convention appears on our first page. The reader in perusing it will readily imagine that it had a magical effect, especially as Mr. Hill, an impressive looking man and fine speaker, delivered it in his hand-drawn style. The Convention was electrified with it, and cheered so that the speaker with difficulty proceeded. A few persons alarmed by its effect called out that Mr. Hill had spoken over his time, but "Go on, go on," arose from friends and opponents alike of Col. Wolford. "Such a grand oratorical feat must not be cut short," said a strong anti-Wolford man; "It will live in history with the oration of Demosthenes and other great productions." "Who is the speaker?" "Who is Hill?" were the inquiries all over the room. "He is a fine practical lawyer of mature years who has made a fortune in the little town of Stanford by eschewing politics and office." "Why was Wolford not nominated then," doubtless some reader asks. Partly because the Convention did not vote on nominations until next morning, when the combinations made between Eastern and Southern Kentucky, neglected states, combining the votes of the friends of Henry, Gaines and Moore, prevailed.—[Paris True Kentuckian.]

THE MACHINE SHOPS—Appreciating the numerous advantages that will accrue to the town in case the machine shops of the Knoxville Branch are located at Richmond Junction; the Board of Trustees has very wisely ordered an election to be held to-morrow, Wednesday, between the hours of 9 A. M. and 4 P. M. to take the sense of the people in regard to the town subscribing $1,000 towards securing that location. The only trouble about locating at the Junction seems to be that the railroad company is of the impression that the land they wish is held at a price beyond its value to them, and for that reason their engineer, Capt. McMichael, has reported in favor of Crab Orchard, where the lands necessary to the works can be had either very cheaply or entirely free of cost. It will require for the shops and side tracks about 70 acres of land for which we understand they are willing to pay from $50 to $75. The owners of the lands they would use at the Junction, hold it at from $100 to $125, and it is worth all of the former figures, even for farming purposes. Now the proposition seems to be that if the people of the town will pay the difference between what the Company thinks the land is worth and what the owners hold it at, the shops will be located at the Junction, and that point has made the terminus of both the Louisville and the Knoxville Divisions. In other words, two full sets of hands for all the trains will lay over there. All the repairs necessary for the two divisions will be done there, and it is also said that shops for the building of cars will be put up. A railroad official tells us that it is likely that the force of hands required at these shops and others who will have to make their homes there, will draw a monthly pay of at least $10,000, the greater portion of which will be spent in this locality. It will therefore be seen the location is worth striving for. The merchants, of course, would be the men most largely benefited, but what benefits them indirectly benefits the whole community. It will enhance the value of lands and of town property, and no doubt bring other important manufactures here. There are those who say that they would do most anything before they would give to a railroad; that if the railroad wants the shops at the Junction, the difference of a few thousand dollars will not prevent them. Be this as it may, it is silly to urge it. If a few thousand dollars will secure the shops here, every man with the interest of the town at heart should vote for the proposition, and every man of business should privately contribute to the extent of his ability. We understand that from $2,500 to $3,000 can be raised by private subscription, and surely there are enough public spirited men in town to carry the election in favor of the proposition.

Just received at McAllister & Bright's a fresh supply of Confectionaries, Apples, Oranges, Lemons, etc.
At the hour of going to press last night, Dr. Craig's physicians informed us that he was in a critical condition. His pulse was 120, respiration 14 and temperature 102.4-5.
A TERRIBLE BLOW—A very deplorable difficulty occurred here on Saturday night which may have a fatal termination. From eye witnesses, we learn that Dr. Craig, who was drinking, went into the Bakery of Dawson Bros. and asked for something to eat. Frank Dawson, being busy, did not immediately respond, and the Doctor feeling insulted at the delay, went out after using some sharp invectives. Just outside the door were standing Armp Dawson and George Pope. Craig addressed the former, told him how he had been treated, and ended in some pretty rough talk about the Dawson family. Pope whispered to Dawson not to pay any attention to him, and turning to Craig, said in a pleasant way, as the testimony goes, "What's the matter, Doc?" Craig asked him what he had to do with it, at the same time hitting him in the mouth with his left fist, and attempting to cut him with a knife held in his right hand. A scuffle ensued, during which Pope seized a brick bat and struck Craig just above the right eye, crushing him down, nor render him senseless, for he was on the street for some time afterwards. About 12 o'clock several physicians were called, and it was at once decided that the operation known as trephining, alone could save his life. Drs. Johnson, of Danville, and Carpenter, of Crab Orchard, were dispatched for, and on Sunday, the operation was successfully performed by Dr. Johnson, assisted by Drs. Brown, Montgomery, Peyton, Bailey and Carpenter. It was found that the skull was crushed in at the point the bat struck it, and that five cracks ran in as many directions from it. The operation lasted nearly three hours, and was entirely satisfactory to all the Doctors present, the patient standing it first-rate. He has since been kept under the influence of opiates, and is getting along reasonably well. Sunday morning Pope was put under arrest. There is a slight cut on his cheek and one in the shoulder of his overcoat. A number of persons are of impression that Pope knowing Dr. Craig's disposition when under the influence of liquor, should have gotten out of his way, while others believe that he acted as almost any man would have done under the circumstances. Viewed in any light, the affair is a most unfortunate one, and furnishes another powerful argument against yielding to the hellish appetite for strong drink. When sober, a more thorough or more companionable gentleman than Dr. Craig, can not be found. He abhors a difficulty as much as any body, but drink, in which he only occasionally indulges, transforms him entirely, and renders him almost insane for the time. Every body regrets the affair, and the Doctor's friends, whose name is legion, sincerely trust he will speedily recover. The examining trial was called yesterday, but on motion of the County Attorney it was postponed till to-morrow, to await the result of the Doctor's injuries. Pope was allowed bail in the sum of $300, which he readily gave. He expresses great sorrow that circumstances forced him to so seriously injure one whom he regarded as a good friend, but says he had either to do as he did, or get killed himself. He scorns the idea that he had any personal ill will at all against Dr. Craig.

MARRIAGES.
—THE BLIND AND HALT—A correspondent at Pulaski Station, in Pulaski County, writes that a few days ago Perry Vaughn, 46 years old, totally blind, and for the last 30 years unable to walk, was married to Miss Margaret Mercer, the ceremony being performed as they sat in a buggy on the public highway. Rev. Albert Kiehl, who tied the knot, refused at first to do so, but Mr. Vaughn threatened to bring suit against him, and he finally but reluctantly consented.
RELIGIOUS.
—REVS. Jno. C. Young and J. R. Peoples closed a meeting at Burgin last week which resulted in 70 restorations and 8 conversions. Mr. Peoples organized a congregation of 15, and proposes to build a chapel for them to worship in.
—REV. J. S. Sims, at the request of the pastor, Mr. McElroy, preached at this Presbyterian Church Sunday night. The subject of his discourse was "Perseverance," and although it has been worn almost thread-bare, his effort was unusually good.
—THE REV. H. O. Hoffman, of the First Methodist Church, Bloomington, Ill., 47 years old, and said to be a very promising and talented man, has been found guilty of seduction and larceny. Six years ago he was tried on a similar charge and acquitted.
—MORE LIGHT appears in the East. That is East of us at Harboursville. It is a 24x36 star, and its period of appearance is once a month. The Cumberland Publishing Company turns it out, and Revs. S. K. Ramsey and S. F. Kelley furnish the light at 50 cents a year. It will advocate Christianity in general, and Methodism in particular.

LAND, STOCK AND CROP.

—BEST hogs are worth $7.40 in Cincinnati now.

—CORN is selling in Henry county at $4.50 to $5 per barrel.

—MADISON James sold his farm of 125 acres in Pulaski county for $1,050 cash to George Jones.

—M. E. Dawson bought of A. H. and B. F. Dawson, about 90 acres of Hanging Rock land at $50 per acre, cash.

—GILMAN, the turkey shipper of Paris, bought 62,000 this year. One lot of 1,600 bronze winks, averaged 33 lbs. dressed.

—A Clark county man sold 9,000 lbs. of White Burley tobacco at 13 cents.

—A. M. Feland sold to J. S. Hundley, a couple of two-year-old cattle at 41 cents.

LINCOLN COUNTY.

Hustonsville.

—Senator Blain was on the street Saturday. Of course Blain is an advocate of Women's Rights.

—The news from John Cash, Sr., is still unfavorable. He is suffering from a complication of pneumonia and heart disease.

—"Dick" is investigating ancient history and ethnology. He has sprung this question: "As the old time men were called He-brews, what is the proper term by which to designate the woman?" Referred to the Editor. (And he gives it up.)

—On Monday, Mrs. Camden, living just West of town, having occasion to go on an errand to the house of a near neighbor, found on her return that the clothing of one of her little children had taken fire, and the child literally burned to death.

—Jerry Hughes has his foot once more upon his native heath, apparently unimpaired in morals by his enforced residence in Stanford. His absence was detrimental to the financial interests of this community, inasmuch as he seems to be general banker for quite a number of his friends hereabouts.

—Dr. Brown is the recipient of a specimen of the "best blood in America" in the form of a game chicken. The Doctor would probably apply for membership in the "National Game-Breeders' Association" were it not for the unwelcome restrictions, imposed by their laws, upon a man's right to use his vernacular.

—The festive candidate is unfolding himself and loudly boasting on the multitude on every corner. We wish him—all of him—success; for we regard every one of him as a very clever fellow, and would dislike to cast a vote against any of him. If by the way, can no one be persuaded to come out for the Assessorship?

—Soc Owens showed me a letter from Cumberland Falls stating that the river at that point had been on a decided tear. The water got up nearly to the floor of the hotel, but so far as ascertained had about reached its maximum without doing material damage. Mr. O. proposes going out immediately to inspect the premises.

—At midnight after the 27th, the Choral Chant arose: "Let the drama into the trumpet speak, the trumpet to the cannon without, the cannon wake the echoes of the living earth, and earth repeat the news to heaven!"—while Jim Alcorn and Craddock astonished here—that Doc Alcorn's is a boy this time!

—Gulien's case being about disposed of the Surgeon's controversy will probably be the next in order. Doubtless old "Conjurando" is ready for the fray. It is thought that Pope had a touch of prophetic stigmata, and had Garfield in his eye when he wrote:

"Suffering, hoping, longing, dying,
Oh, the pain, the bliss, of dying!"

—It may not be generally known that religious services are held in all the churches in this place. Dr. Hays supplies the Northern Presbyterian, on the first and third, and Rev. Triplett, the Southern on the second and fourth Sundays in each month. Elder W. L. Williams supplies the Christian Church on the first and second Sundays—the third and fourth being given to his Evangelical work. The Baptists are moving in their Church enterprise, and will probably commence building when Spring opens. Rev. Tyree, is here, having taken boarding for his family at Mr. Cecil's. The well-known modesty of the leader prevents me from saying anything about a punctual and hopeful class that assembles at Dr. Brown's office every Sunday morning, remaining until 11 o'clock, when he dismisses them to attend church.

—I must not omit to mention a magnificent present of fine tobacco—grown by himself—which was handed to Dr. B. and the writer, by Mr. Ah. Chenault. The gift was free and spontaneous—untrammeled, except by a single condition to the effect that it is never to be hinted in public or private that Mr. C. is in any way related to the great estate trader of Madison. We subscribe to the condition; "Oh no, we never mention it!" Be it known that this is not a matter of "bargain and sale," however much it may suggest the idea of a good pro quo.

—THE VERNON DEPARTMENT.
Sam. M. Burdett, Editor.

—The L. & N. R. R. has just erected a new tool shop near the depot at this place.

—Mr. Vernon wouldn't mind so much to have the machine shops of the L. & N.—that is, of course, if Stanford can't get them.

—It looks now as if there would be no ice gathered this winter and people are apprehensive that there will be no cold beer on draught here next summer.

—Mr. Geo. Sandbrook, of Livingston, has made to L. S. Jones, of Louisville, a deed of trust, conveying his real estate in this, Laurel and Jefferson counties for the benefit of his creditors. His liabilities are about $1,500, and his creditors have given him an extension of 6 and 12 months. His embarrassments were caused by heavy investments in a railroad contract. He will be "O. K." at the end of 12 months.

—PERSONAL.—Miss Helen Conn, of Harboursville, will leave this week for Lexington, where she will attend school. Miss—

Lynn, of Louisville, is visiting her mother, Mrs. E. Bullock, in this county. Miss Belle Smith, of Harboursville, is the guest of Miss Mattie Newcomb. Geo. McC. Brooks has returned from a visit to Richmond. Mr. J. H. Trabue, an attorney from Louisville, was here on professional business last Saturday.

—If the people of this town were wise they would ask the present Legislature to give the town a new charter. The old charter has long been inoperative, and it is besides, a very poor piece of legislation. There ought to be a new charter and an organization under it. Drunkenness and other misbehavior in the streets which has become quite common recently, ought to be punished. With an effective organization and an enforcement of the laws, the fines would pay the running expenses, and help in making some payments which are badly needed.

—The weather clerk, having exhausted all his cisterns, pitched a few handfuls of snow in this direction Sunday morning, after which he rolled the heavy clouds from off the face of the sky—so to speak—and we are now having sunshine and clear, cold weather.

—PETTY CRIMES—Thursday night Dick Miller's smoke house was broken into, and several pieces of stolen stolen. No clue to the thief. On the same night some miscreant entered James Honk's stable and disfigured two of his horses, by closely trimming their tails. No punishment would be too severe for this scoundrel.

—The lecture of Father F. J. Donnelly, of Richmond, at the Court-house here Sunday evening, was listened to by a good audience, who paid the speaker close attention. The subject was: "Private Interpretation of the Bible." The speaker has a splendid presence, is graceful, with a pleasant voice, and is quite felicitous in his language. His argument sought to prove the authority of the church as teacher, and was presented in an interesting manner. He seemed grateful for the large and attentive audience.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

A CHANCE FOR BRIDES.

One summer evening, just as the sun was setting behind the Rip-Raps and making a golden pathway across the limpid waters, the steamer Accomac, plying between the local wharves of the James River and Old Point, set on shore four persons, or, to speak to the card, two couples, and just married, as any one could see with half an eye; blushing and clinging helplessly, so to speak, to the woman's part; and great nervousness, added to the self-protecting air, on the man's side, and an appearance, badly acted, of indifference in both, told the tale.

The genial Phoebe appears on the scene; he takes in the situation at a glance, and he walks, or rather rolls, up to the quarter.

"Walk up to my hotel, gentlemen and ladies; my name's Phoebe, and I'm over here; what might yours be?"

One murmurs Jones, the other Smith, and then, both stuttering, present Mrs. J. and Mrs. S.

"Just married, I see," said the genial proprietor. "Walk right up and I'll give you the best room in the house. I like bridal couples, I do; reminds me of the time when we and my old woman did the tender racket and cleaned our teeth with the same toothbrush."

After waiting in the reception parlor half an hour, the two couples were shown their respective rooms, they being marked on the register as 100 and 101, and were side by side. At supper they appeared and tackled the menu, and a strange fact was that the brides ate an enormous meal, but the young husbands could hardly worry down a cup of coffee. Afterward they journeyed to the ball room, and sat listening to the music. Then the brides got fidgety and disappeared to their rooms. One was a short, sprightly brunette, all fire and sparkle, and as plump as a partridge; the other a tall, Juno-limbed blonde, with complexion of cream and rose, sleepy, sensuous—just such a type as Rubens loved to paint. The grooms were alike in stature; both had beardless faces, with an adolescent mustache growing, and it is needless to add that they were from the country and taking their first trip into the stream of fashionable life.

After the departure of their wives the two incontinent fathers, all unknown to each other, and too much engrossed in their own blissful thoughts to notice other people, passed an hour or two in looking on the billiard players, and varying the monotony by going up to the bar every five minutes and taking a drink.

Now it happened that a gentleman, I dare not mention his name, was watching the whole proceedings with an amused and observant eye, having looked at the registry, a most sinful and thoughtless idea came in his head. Gazing around cautiously he saw that the clerk's attention was engaged elsewhere, so he slyly takes the pen and changes the number to one and the one to two. It is a very simple thing to do, but very wicked. So the rooms were transposed.

By-and-by Mr. Jones, getting tired of looking around, went to the book to see the number of his room; it read 101, and he goes along the dimly-lighted passage, with the joker stealing behind. Arriving at the door, he scanned the number to see if it was right, and then walked boldly in, for the door was unlocked, and the sky-light showed that the room was wrapped in Cinmerian darkness. Mr. Jones now being comfortably installed in Mrs. Smith's room, it was not ten minutes after that Mr. Smith, the husband of the plump brunette, came along and looked at the register, came timidly and expectantly stealing, like a shadow down the half-lighted aisle, counting for the magic number. Arriving at No. 100, he walked in the chamber where the grand-looking blonde lay, and the door closed.

As hour at least passed, and our joker waited in vain for some sign. All was silent and dark, and so he turned in himself, but not to sleep. Imagination played strange freaks, and the earliest dawn still found him wandering. Getting up he resumed his watch, and just as the lamps were beginning to pale Mr. Jones, looking like Tarquin, emerged from the room and disappeared. Mr. Smith, by a coincidence, followed him.

At breakfast time both brides appeared and were joined by their liege lords.

One thing was evident to the joker, the brides had not found out the trick; their freedom from a burning embarrassment, barring a little maiden bashfulness, showed this; but the grooms? From his vantage place

Mr. Practical J. saw the young Benedicts sitting by themselves in a brown study. Every now and then they would laugh silently until the tears would run down their cheeks, and they would fairly hug themselves in an ecstasy of mirth; then they would become grave, only to break out into grins a moment after; and so the long day passed away, and they took the steamer to New York.

Now, what was the upshot of all this the joker never knew, but remorse tortured his soul; he took to drinking; then falling steadily down, reaching the very depths of the pit, an indignant public sentenced him to pay penance, and he is now serving out a term in the Virginia Legislature, and he never gets a letter but what in derision an "Hon." is put before his name.

Moral for young married couples—turn on the gas.—(Old Point (Va.) Letter to Washington Capital.

How She Fetched Him.

Hazel Quirk looked quickly up at Lord Traverse Ray, the love light beaming forth from her eyes with a tender radiance that told more plainly than could any words the deep affection she bore him; but there was in the look a pleading wishfulness, a sense of trustful security, that touched his very heart. She did not speak, but, placing a dimpled arm around his neck, drew his face down and kissed him with a soft, melting, three-for-50 cents kiss that she kept on tap only for him, and then her eyes shone forth again the love that her lips could not utter, while the drooping mouth quivered as if in pain.

"You are not well, darling," said Percy Hanafin (his week-day name) in agitated tones, the words nearly choking him as he spoke. "Let me bring you vinaigrette, or a bottle of seltzer—a quaff or two of that would revive you."

But Hazel only laid her head on his shoulder, wound her white arms around his neck, and began to sob as if her heart would break.

"My God, Hazel! what have I done to cause you this bitter anguish? Speak, my angel, speak, and tell me wherein the fault lies. Demand of me any sacrifice, no matter how great, and it shall be cheerfully made. I have a large red apple in my overcoat pocket, and it shall be yours—all yours—if you will only speak."

Slowly from the shoulder blade rose the little hand, with its mass of brown curls, slowly turned the pure, beautiful face of Hazel Quirk, until Percy again looked down into those eyes that had so lately beamed forth merry glances, and saw once more the little soul that had so often burrowed in his vest. "You will surely keep your promise?" Hazel asked between the convulsive sobs that seemed to be breaking her heart and seriously disarranging her hair.

"Of course I will, my sweet," replied Percy. "You shall have the apple."

"And is it really and truly a red one?" asked the girl, again sobbing as if her heart would break.

"Yes, my love."

"Hope to die if it ain't?"—this between the sobs.

"Yes," said Percy.

"Criss-cross?"

"Yes, dear."

"Well"—and here she broke down afresh, but finally mastered her grief and spoke—"Papa has soaked the mill."

"What!" exclaimed Percy in tones of astonishment, "soaked the mill that has been his home so long?"

"Same mill," replied Hazel, wringing out her handkerchief and fishing up a dry eye from the sleeping car of her polonaise.

"Well, that is sad, indeed," said Percy; "but what matters it to us?"

"Ah! you do not understand," sobbed the girl; "you do not drop."

"Why, what do you mean, Hazel? You have concealed something from me, else why this juggling with words?"

"I mean, Percy," said Hazel in low, bitter tones, "that the mill is mortgaged, and that I am to pay the debt."

"What! my Hazel collateral security? It cannot, must not be!"

"But it is," was the tearful response.

"Care not," exclaimed the young man. "You shall not be sacrificed. I will hurry you to-morrow, and thwart this vile plan of Jim Rodney's."

"You will?" said the girl, looking at him eagerly, and jumping lightly from his knee.

"I will."

The little head fell on his shirt front with a dull thud.

Hazel had fainted.

Placing her carefully on a fauteuil, Lord Traverse Ray kissed the tear-stained cheeks, and started out to borrow a dollar and a half from his mother with which to get the marriage license. As the sound of his footsteps died away, Dunstan Quirk entered the room where Hazel was lying. She rose as he opened the door, and smiled faintly.

"Did you give him the racket, sis?" the old man asked.

"Yes, papa."

"And did he fall into the net?"

"I should smile," replied Hazel.

"Suckers are pretty thick this winter, my child," said Dunstan Quirk, "and you're the girl that can land them."—[Chicago Tribune.

Private Abuse of a Newspaper.

Some people think they are very smart when they abuse a newspaper or editor. They forget that many papers have largely profited by becoming the objects of these attacks, and that some editors have thrived on being assaulted.

Aside from this consideration, it should be remembered that an editor is often obliged to carry a very delicate position. His sense of right will sometimes cause him to attack or defend a man, a business, a class, or a cause at the risk of making enemies of others, only to find those in whose interests he has labored display ingratitude.

Of course no level-headed editor expects to find much gratitude or charity. He must generally be content with the approval of his own conscience, and pursue the course he believes to be right, regardless of either frowns or smiles, supported by his conscious rectitude.

It will come all right in the end. It is hard to be misunderstood, and to find those to whose support you have earned a right, desert you; to meet alone the attacks of those you have increased in pursuing the course you will thereby learn a lesson of self-reliance, and form a habit of judging entirely for yourself that will be inevitable. You will be able to tell the truth, however distasteful, and refuse to utter a falsehood, no matter how much pleasanter it may promise to make things.

About Daniel.

A teacher last Sunday, was telling a class of boys the story of Daniel in the lions' den, when a freckled boy, with a scar on his face and one suspender, pushed a good-sized quill of fine-cut against the roof of his mouth and remarked:

"How much did he get for it?"

"He received no compensation," remarked the teacher, in tones which made clear her great horror.

"A free shot?" inquired the boy, excitedly.

"It was no show at all," replied the teacher, who thought he was skeptical, and continued: "Don't you believe Daniel went among the lions without being hurt?"

"Yes," said the boy; "for I saw that snap worked at the circus last week, but it was no free graft; the man gets seventy-five a week and expenses!"

When Christmas presents were dealt out this year that boy did not apprehend the cream cake by a very large majority.—[Puck.

A gentleman having a farm near this city says that he raises none but black hogs on his place, for the reason that they cannot be seen the dark night that thieves operate in. He adopted the black hog some five or six years ago, since which time he has never lost one by theft. Previously his hogs were constantly depredated upon.—[Lexington Gazette.

A Missouri woman has collected 17,000 spools. Being an industrious woman, she was only eight years making the collection; but unfortunately by the time her task was accomplished, spools had gone out of fashion in the brick-brac line, and the Missouri woman sold out for fifteen cents a barrel.

A lawyer having found a purse and returned it to the owner, one of the papers says it may be honest and honorable, but it is exceedingly unprofessional. The delinquent defended himself on the ground that there was nothing in it.

Blonde—"They say Carrie is engaged." Brunette—"Engaged! why, she married a month ago and has just sued for a divorce." Blonde—"How romantic! Isn't it splendid?"—[Boston Transcript.

The young gent who always escorts a young lady to free entertainments but studiously avoids those where a charge is made, went to the to,—[Carrollton Democrat.

Patriot comes to the morgue to claim a lost relative. "Has he any peculiarity by which he can be recognized?" "Yes, he is dumb."

Opportunities are very sensitive; if you slight their first visit, you seldom see them again.

They never taste who always drink; They always talk who never think.—[Prior.

How Millions of False Teeth Are Made.

A reporter at the Star recently visited a factory in this city where false teeth are made by the million. In the process of manufacture the siler and tellurium in their crude state are submitted to a red heat and then suddenly thrown into cold water, the effect being to render them more easily pulverized. Having been ground very fine in water, and the water evaporated, the two materials mentioned are dried and sifted. The kolin is washed free from impurities. These materials, with felspar, sponge, platinum and flux in proportion for the enamel, are mixed with water and worked into masses resembling putty. This done, the unbaked porcelain masses are ready for the molding room. The molds are in two pieces, and are made of brass, one-half of the teeth or sections being on either side. The coloring materials are first placed in the exact position, and quantity required and the body of the tooth and the gum are inserted in lumps corresponding to the size of the teeth. The molds are then closed, and they are dried by a slow heat. When perfectly dry, they are taken out and sent to the trimmer's room. The trimmers remove imperfections, and send them in trays of fire clay to the furnace, where, having remained for twenty minutes, they are complete.—[Wilmington (Del.) Star.

Mrs. Nancy Hartman, of Mansfield, O., writes: "I have been under the care of a physician during the past seven years. Sometimes I would feel better, and then again I would feel worse. The past two years nothing seemed to help me. About two months ago my doctor seemed to be getting discouraged, and I lay completely bed-ridden. I grew very nervous; the least noise gave me great irritation. The doctor, I suppose, more to get me off his hands than anything else, as he said I would never leave my bed, told me I might try Brown's Iron Bitters, at the same time remarking, 'It was a good tonic, and would help to keep me alive.' I have used the remedy about two months, and have been out of bed nearly two weeks, and now help about the house. It has acted like a miracle in my case."

GENTLEMEN: I have been using and selling your work in Clark county for the past four years. Your work has been the best I have ever seen, and I am sure to be able to sell a great many more this season. Your Combination Spring Buggy is pronounced by all to be the finest, most solid and easiest riding buggy now in use. Your four-wheeled side-bar wagon is certainly without a rival. Selling all in all, we heartily say that your buggies cannot be better in the country for style, finish, and durability. Yours truly,
H. T. BROADBENT,
Springfield, Ohio.
